MEMORANDUM FOR: Mr. Emmett Echols

Emmett:

I have discussed with Colonel Grogan the question you raised with me concerning your desire to use "The Craft of Intelligence" in your recruiting effort, and I think there has been a complete misunderstanding about this. Colonel Grogan's point is that CIA should not in any way promote Mr. Dulles' book. Among other things this means that we must not mail it to libraries or others in the CIA envelope.

Colonel Grogan understands completely the advantages to be gained by having your recruiters hand this article to individuals to stimulate their interest in the intelligence business, and he has no objection whatever to this procedure. You are authorized to proceed accordingly.

(I understand that an almost unlimited number of copies of the publication can be obtained from Mr. Dulles without cost.)

Signed

L. K. White
